Sex predator soldier attacked young girls

BY JULIA SUTTON

editor@HPnorthants.co.uk

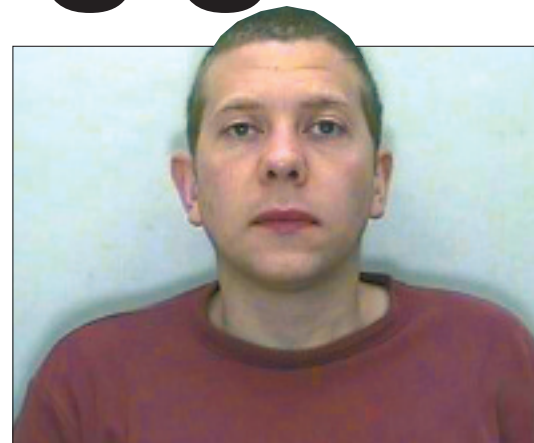

A SOLDIER from Northampton is facing prison after being convicted of raping three teenagers and trying to abduct two schoolgirls.

Jonathan Haynes, 30, of Saxon Street, Northampton, was found guilty of six counts of rape, two of kidnap and two of attempting to kidnap following a three week trial at Bristol Crown Court.

The predator meticulously planned his attacks for weeks as he prowled the streets of Chippenham, Wiltshire, late at night looking for young victims.

Haynes raped the girls after abducting them from the streets of the town and also attacked a University of Glamorgan first year student after breaking into halls of residence.

The Royal Logistics Corp lance corporal, who was based at Buckley Barracks, Hullavington, near Chippenham, also tried to snatch two 14-year-old girls from a country lane.

Haynes, who wore grey trousers and a grey shirt and tie, stood expressionless between two dock officers as the jury forewoman returned ten unanimous guilty verdicts after less than a day's deliberations.

Members of the public, who were sitting in court, wiped away tears and hugged each other following the verdicts.

Defence barrister Ian Bourne QC asked for an adjournment for the preparation of a pre-sentence report.

Recorder of Bristol Judge Neil Ford QC agreed and fixed sentencing for September 8.

Police eager to locate missing teenagers

Matthew
Woodbridge

POLICE are appealing for any information on the whereabouts of two teenagers who have both gone missing.

In two separate cases, 16-year-old Deborah Santos, from Northampton, and 14-year-old Matthew Woodbridge, from the Long Buckby area, have disappeared.

Deborah went missing from her home on July 30 and is described as 5ft 7ins tall, slim build and long straight dark brown hair.

She was last seen wearing a light pink short sleeved top tied around the waist, black sandals with buckles at the front and side and possibly blue jeans or pink jeggings.

Deborah may be wearing an elastic band bracelet and has a piercing on the right hand side of the chin with a large metal ball stud.

Officers are keen to speak with anyone who may know of Deborah's whereabouts or may have seen her since she went missing.

Officers are also urging Deborah herself to come forward to confirm she is safe and well.

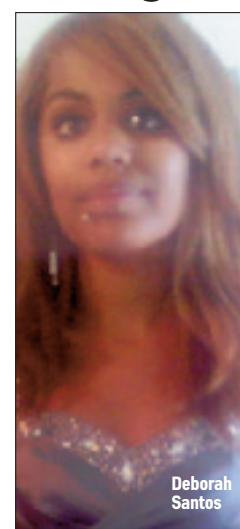

Matthew was last seen at 4pm on Sunday, July 24.

Detective Sergeant Andy Blaize said: "We are keen to locate Matthew as a matter of urgency as we are concerned for his health and welfare.

"We understand people may be harbouring him because they believe this is in Matthew's best interests.

"This is not the case. It is important that we establish where he is and how he is and anyone who is protecting or sheltering him will find themselves liable to criminal proceedings being taken against them."

Anyone with information should call Northamptonshire Police on 03000 111 222.

Tribunal gets to bottom of kitchen staffs' antics

BY KEELEY KNOWLES

editor@HPnorthants.co.uk

A HEAD chef at a prestigious abbey pulled down his trousers and rubbed his 'bare buttocks' into the face of a female employee, a tribunal heard.

The lid was lifted on a culture of 'horseplay' at Woburn's Sculpture Gallery in Bedfordshire as staff fought their dismissals after three videos of their antics were posted on Facebook - including one revealing a chef being 'bound and gagged' and dragged along a carpet before being thrown into a sink of water.

Other conduct that came out at the Employment Tribunal hearing last Thursday included another member of staff squirting cream into a female employee's shoes and a man smearing his face with chocolate and kissing a colleague.

A spokeswoman for Bedford Estates said it strongly disagreed such actions could be 'classified or dismissed as 'horseplay' due to the nature and severity' of them.

Last month, our sister paper Bedfordshire on Sunday exclusively revealed that the former staff at the Sculpture Gallery were fighting their dismissal amid claims from chef Adam Little that it was a 'joke' to mark his last day at work.

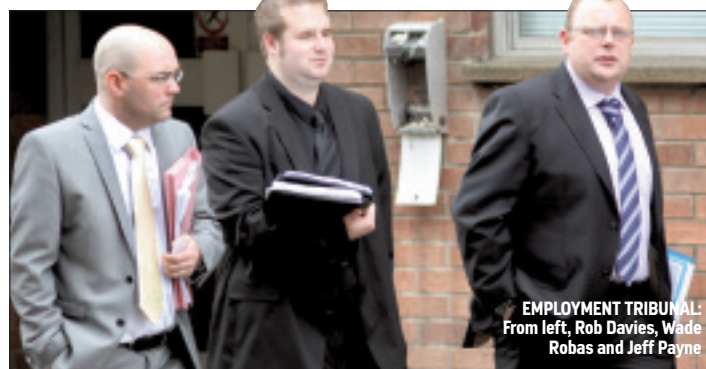

During a pre-hearing review in Howard Street, Bedford, in which ex-staff - head chef Rob Davies, 40, Jeff Payne, 33, and Northampton resident Wade Robas, 24 - were claiming unfair dismissal, the videos were played.

The first, described by the representative of the respondent - Bedford Estates - as the 'binding and gagging incident' Mr Little has his legs, arms and face taped up and is subjected to acts of a 'humiliating nature'.

The second, called 'the smearing of food' captures Mr Davies holding a plate of prawns and cheesecake which is then wiped in Mr Little's face while someone is heard saying they've done it because 'Noddy's been a bad boy'.

The final video shows another member of staff going to sit down as Mr Davies pulls the chair away leaving him to fall on the floor.

Although the videos were posted on the Woburn Abbey Staff Facebook page in March last year, it wasn't until December that the three employees were suspended and then dismissed.

EMPLOYMENT TRIBUNAL:

Mr Davies - described as being at 'the centre' of the videos - admitted that he'd been involved in other conduct including pulling his trousers down and rubbing his bare buttocks in a female employee's face on two occasions.

Mr Payne hit back at the claim that an incident in which he'd kissed a female member of staff with chocolate smeared on his face displayed 'sexual misconduct' and said: "Kisses on the cheek from a friend to a friend cannot be classed as a sexual act."

Mr Robas said if he'd known that the same female member of staff had taken his squirting cream in her shoes in a different way earlier, he would have apologised and reimbursed her.

Before Judge Philip Lancaster concluded that the staff's claims would have little reasonable prospect of success in a full hearing, Mr Davies told him the behaviour revolved around 'camaraderie'.

He added: "We worked up to 240 hours a month and I saw them more than I did my family. It was a very stressful job with long hours but we got by."

"Things happened and it was a way of blowing off steam. I was taped up and put in a sink of water on my birthday and I didn't complain."

In summing up Mr Lancaster said: "It's quite clear to me from watching the videos that it's possible that different people viewing them would come to a different interpretation."

"Some people regard it as simply funny but equally others will view that with a certain element of disgust." If the claimants pay their £250 deposits they can pursue a full hearing which would take place later in the year but the judge warned them that if they lose their case they will be liable for costs.

After the hearing they said they were 'seriously considering it' and Mr Davies added: "I am surprised that it wasn't just struck out. I was loyal to my employer but I have said it was probably stupid and would I do it again? Probably not."

Mr Payne added: "We all said it did happen and we were deeply sorry. They didn't understand the friendship we had."

A spokesman for Bedford Estates said: "We are disappointed with the outcomes of the pre-hearing review."

"The Bedford Estates does not condone any behaviour which is detrimental to employees or that may result in an unhappy working environment, as the well-being of our employees is paramount to us."

"We have always believed that the decision to dismiss certain employees was right and fair, and taken in line with disciplinary procedures."

"While disappointed that the claimants have been given an opportunity to consider whether they wish to continue to tribunal stage, we are greatly encouraged by the judge's finding that they have little opportunity of success in these cases and were asked to pay a deposit if they wish to take the matter forward."

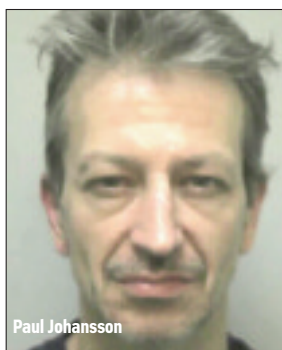

"The Bedford Estates wishes to make no further comment until the outcome of the tribunals are announced."

Bumbling crooks' 'inept' mistakes

BY JONATHAN REILLY

jonathan.reilly@hpnorthants.co.uk

A GANG of 'inept' would-be robbers failed to spot a broken down police car just yards away from the pub they were targeting.

Sam Scullion, 21, from Semilong, Steven Warren, 25, of Lings and Paul Johansson, 43, of no fixed address were all jailed after they pleaded guilty to the attempted robbery of the Britannia Pub on Bedford Road in Northampton.

Northampton Crown Court heard on Monday how the group of bumbling criminals made several mistakes as they attempted to get to the pub's safe on Sunday, May 22 this year.

Alex Bull, prosecuting, explained that four men, who had their faces covered approached a member of staff while he was putting glass into a bottle bank. Ms Bull said: "The men approached the member of staff and asked him to take them to the safe. One of the men told him 'we are not going to hurt you.' They then tried to bind the member of staff's hands with cable ties."

However, the victim was able to get away and back into the pub where he called police.

The men then gave up their attempted robbery and ran off in the direction of the Nene white-water centre.

It was there that they were spotted by the police officer who had broken down and was parked in a nearby lay-by.

Ms Bull said: "The police officer was parked up with a flat tyre and at around 11pm he saw three figures running from the pub. He was able to point other officers into the direction that they had gone in."

The men were then found in bushes by a police dog squad.

Judge Charles Wide QC sentenced the men, who all had several previous convictions, to three years in prison each. He said: "To have opened the safe you would have to have put the staff in an element of fear and that is a serious matter.

"You went equipped, covered your face and had cable ties, although having said that your behaviour did not show a high level of sophistication.

"You all have bad records and it should be noted that bad records increase sentences."

Mitigating for Scullion, David Everett said: "In relation to the offence, they were somewhat inept.

"They did not check to see if there were any customers still in the pub, they did not leave anyone on look-out.

"And if they looked around closely they would have seen the police car broken down."

Gary Short, mitigating for Johansson explained that he was a self employed carpenter whose partner was pregnant.

He said: "Faced with no job and the need for income he turned to crime to get the money he needed." One man was never apprehended.

Attacker searched for reports of his crimes

Haynes, you will be sentenced on September 8.

"I have ordered a pre-sentence report and it will be in your best interest to co-operate.

"In the meantime, you will be remanded into custody."

After Haynes was led away, the judge thanked the jury of seven men and five women for their attention to what he described as a 'distressing' case.

Jurors heard the first kidnap and rape happened on September 13, 2009 in Chippenham as the 16-year-old made her way home from a night out at the Karma nightclub.

Just 13 days later he raped the 18-year-old student after forcing entry to halls of residence in Pontypridd, South Wales. The following February he attempted to snatch the two schoolgirls late at night from a country lane near Chippenham.

Weeks later Haynes, who also worked part time as a doorman at the Market Tavern in Stroud, Gloucestershire, kidnapped a 17-year-old girl from the streets of Chippenham and repeatedly raped her.

He wore a black balaclava and gloves and would grab his victims by the throat and drag them into his car.

Analysis of Haynes' mobile phone showed he was in the vicinity of all the attacks.

Jurors were told that features of the rape of the 16-year-old matched that of the two later attacks.

Haynes denied all the attacks, except the final one, which he maintained was consensual sex.

Forensic analysis of Haynes' laptop seized from his room at the barracks showed he carried out hundreds of searches on the internet for information relating to the attacks.

Jurors were told Haynes was using Google to find information on the attempted kidnapping of the schoolgirls before it had even been reported to the police.

He would enter terms such as 'Chippenham rape', 'Chippenham sexual assault', 'university rape' and 'Glamorgan rape'.

Haynes would even search social networking sites like Facebook, My Space and Friends Reunited armed with the names of his victims.

This 'terrible' state of affairs are a 'humiliation' in 2011

WHAT a terrible state of affairs locally I read about in last week's edition of the H&P!

Cutbacks in almost every aspect of local services, from the police, rural bus services and worst of all to a basic need, the switch off of a good many street lights.

The outside of my house is like the 'Black Hole of Calcutta'. I can't either, via the council, get some initial lighting installed at the Weston Favell bus stop area, which is a disgrace and danger to the public in winter months.

The 'powers that be' tell me there is no funding available. What a complete and utter joke!

As I have written in Your Letters before, the situation will only deteriorate unless the council tax is paid in an entirely different way.

Instead of just sending demands to easy target householders, about a third of the population, all residents need to contribute a fair share according to their income.

Over 60 per cent don't pay a bean at all! The only way is to transfer the system to income tax, saving a vast fortune in administration alone.

Central Government control 85 per cent by grants, why not all of it?

There are two additional reasons for this lack of funding for essentials, by what I see and hear on my travels to my health centre, local transport and by just walking down Abington Street Northampton and on my housing estate, where I feel like a complete stranger in my own country of 72 years, in which I paid thousands of pounds in taxes, for what?

The present fiasco and a pension pittance?

Immigration of three million net nationally, many thousands locally, encouraged by New Labour in their 13 years to promote multi-culturalism, have put immense costs and pressure onto all local services, from translations, equality councils, human rights procedures, schools where English is not the basic language of many, not to mention severe diseases not detected on entry with obvious consequences to our 'International' Health Service.

It would be an eye-opener to know how much funding these people receive from our local authority. It does not take Einstein to know it's a vast sum.

Finally, public service workers incomes doubled from 1997-2010, under Blair and Brown, the reason for the many current balancing acts, staff cutbacks, resulting in frontline service reductions and the disgrace of inadequate street lighting, a reminder of the blitz war years.

What an humiliation in 2011 and bound to worsen unless drastic measures are taken, as aforementioned.

Keith Jackson
Northampton

CUTBACKS: Northants Police is one body looking to save cash

There are other options than a blackout

I EMAILED you before regarding the indiscriminate switch off of street lighting on estate roads, cycle ways and footways throughout the county.

I was very pleased to see that so many council taxpayers have objected to the council's action and I applaud all those who demonstrated their opposition it.

With many years experience in installing road lighting and the justification for spending public funds to install it ie to reduce night time accidents and, in urban areas, to help reduce crime and, importantly, the fear of crime to the elderly and anyone who has to walk the streets after dark.

In my opinion the decision to simply switch off every other light was taken by someone who was, at the very least, ill advised.

Yes, the council has to save money. Whose fault that is we can only guess. But, with proper consultation and an appraisal of the risks involved surely a sensible compromise could have been reached.

As an example, the majority of estate and footway lights use a standard bayonet type fitting similar to most domestic lamps. With only one wire reconnection to bypass the control gear the 40 to 50 watt lamp could be replaced with a seven or 12 watt energy efficient fluorescent lamp which, although of a lower output, would still provide a measure of lighting to the estate roads and footways where it is needed most.

I carried out this conversion to a similar light on my house years ago and it provides low cost security lighting from dusk to dawn.

I'm sure the Northants County lighting engineer would agree with my observations as would the Institution of Lighting Professionals with whom I am sure he must be associated.

Fourteen arrested as police issue warning

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE Police have revealed that there were 14 arrests across the county on Tuesday night amid rumours of violent riots occurring in London and other cities spreading to the county.

However, gossip of the violent disorder seen in the capital proved to be generally untrue, barring a few isolated cases.

Police have said there were 227 linked incidents and twelve crimes recorded across the county, including an arson attack at a car wash in Wellingborough, pictured.

There were 14 arrests across the county, with ten of those coming on Wellingborough Road in Northampton, where a gang of youths moved up from Abington Park and threw bottles and stones at a police van which caused minor damage.

Two men were arrested in Wellingborough for criminal damage. Two men, one 18-year-old from Daventry and one 17-year-old from Northampton, have been charged with incitement to commit riot. The 17-year-old has also been charged with assaulting a police officer.

Chief Inspector Fay Tennet, said: "What we wanted to show is that if you start inciting violence on Facebook, BlackBerrys or other messaging services we will take action.

"Ten people were arrested in connection with some minor disorder that began in Abington Park and progressed to Wellingborough Road. These people, in their teens, remain in police custody awaiting interview.

"We were receiving reports created on social media throughout Tuesday but these were mostly false reports, conjecture and rumours.

"They were often making people quite frightened but we have seen far fewer reports of these in the last few days.

"We plan to continue with high visibility patrols, offering reassurance to the communities and deterring any possible criminal activity.

"We will also be supporting our colleagues in the Metropolitan Police by sending resources across.

"We will not be tolerating any lawlessness or opportunistic individuals who think they can use this as a means of behaving criminally and damaging property.

"We will respond quickly and decisively to incidents and arrest people who behave in this manner.

"We would urge people to remain calm, conduct daily business and remain vigilant."

Local MPs defend taking gifts from tobacco company

BY JONATHAN REILLY
jonathan.reilly@HPnorthants.co.uk

THE two MPs of Northampton have defended the decision to accept gifts from one of the world's largest tobacco companies.

Brian Binley, MP for Northampton South, and Michael Ellis, MP for Northampton North, were both guests of Japan Tobacco International (JTI) who make brands such as Benson and Hedges and Camel.

The MPs were given two tickets worth £1,132.80 to the Chelsea Flower Show by the company on May 24.

Mr Binley was also given two tickets to the Opera at Glyndebourne worth £1,132.80.

Both MPs have reiterated that the gifts were above board and registered as a donation with parliamentary authorities and that the company has not influenced their stance on smoking.

Mr Binley said: "I enjoyed the Chelsea Flower Show very much."

"I have been working on issues related to tobacco and the smoking ban for three or four years. I don't smoke and I am asthmatic but the smoking ban is one of the main factors behind the decline of the pub industry.

"These draconian measures force people outside into shanty huts where you could have separated ventilated rooms for smokers in the pubs.

"Pubs are dying and at the heart of the community and this week alone we have seen how important it is to have a strong community."

Mr Ellis said that despite the cost of the hospitality being recorded at £1,132.80, the true cost of the gift was much lower.

He said: "The true cost of the ticket was £50.

"The price increases when you include the cost of the corporate hospitality, the marquee, but the real figure amounts to the tickets with morning coffee and lunch."

Mr Ellis also said that his views on tobacco were on the basis of supporting small interdependent retailers in his constituency, adding: "I have spoken with newsgagents before I was elected on the issue of tobacco displays and the fact is that proposed legislation will impact several small businesses across Northampton."

A spokesman for JTI explained that it was commonplace to entertain politicians.

He said: "Like many other businesses, we invite politicians and their parliamentary staff to certain events as they provide an opportunity for us to engage with them about JTI in an open and transparent way."

Closer to home, we have recently agreed ambitious proposals with the other forces in the East Midlands to pool our resources and expertise in forensics and serious and organised crime, giving

Not everyone will be able to see beyond the spectre of bleak finances but they understand and trust the judgement of both the Force and the Police Authority to make the right decisions in a way that accords with our values and commitment to putting communities first. Police cop £370k bill for informants

jonathan.reilly@HPnorthants.co.uk

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE Police have paid nearly £400,000 to snitches in the last seven years.

The figures, released to the Herald & Post by the Freedom of Information act, show that £369,634.83 has been spent by the force on informants in the period.

The average amount spent per year on information from people in the know is £52,804.97 – the equivalent salary of a Chief Inspector or two Constables.

The information shows that in the financial year of 2004/05, £44,287.26 was spent on informants.

In 2005/06, £55,608.22 was exchanged for information.

The highest annual figure of £88,288.98 was handed out in 2006/07.

In 2007/08, £57,513.06 was spent and in 2008/09 the force expenditure on snitches totalled £48,048.46.

2009/10 saw £38,733.85 dished out and last year the police spent £37,155.

Northamptonshire Police have not been able to provide the breakdown of the payments as the number of informants within the county is regarded as sensitive information. The force has said that it believes that the money offered for information is one of the best methods of gathering intelligence.

Detective superintendent Jan Meagher said: "Covert human intelligence sources (CHIS) provide valuable sources of information, the benefits of the provision of this information and the importance of protecting this has been recognised by the judiciary for over 200 years. Sources can offer unrivalled access to criminals and criminal enterprises, often with a degree of personal risk.

"The use of this tactic enables policing to focus its efforts when determining investigative lines of enquiry.

"This can generate quality evidence, maximise opportunities to frustrate criminal activities whilst maintaining public safety."

COPS HUNT FOR CHILD ROBBER

POLICE are appealing for witnesses after a boy was punched by a ten or 11-year-old who then stole his bike. The attack happened close to the Adventure Centre in Kings Heath Park, Northampton, on Sunday, July 3 between 8pm and 8.30pm.

The boy was cycling through the park when he was approached by another boy who demanded his bike. The victim was then pushed and the cycle stolen.

Police are looking for a white male, between ten or 11, about 5ft tall, medium build, brown hair with blonde highlights, brown eyes and wearing a black t-shirt with a pink and green robot on the front, jogging bottoms and black trainers.

Witnesses, or anyone with information, should call Northamptonshire Police on 03000 111 222 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

CYCLIST HURLED RACIST ABUSE

THERE was a racist assault on the Racecourse in Northampton.

The victim was approached by a man riding a push bike who rode the cycle into him and punched him on Wednesday, August 3 at about 11.30pm, close to Military Road.

The man also shouted racist abuse at him.

The offender is described as white, in his early twenties, about 5ft 6 tall, of slim build with blonde hair brushed forward, wearing a red Arsenal or Manchester United shirt, black trousers and riding a silver bike.

Witnesses can contact police on 03000 111 222.

RESTAURANT IS WISH MAKING

THE Grange Park Harvester in Northampton is aiming to help raise £50,000 for Make-A-Wish Foundation during its annual fundraising month - August.

To help customers get involved in the fundraising, Harvester staff at the restaurant on Cheaney Drive will be inviting guests to make a donation to charity through buying a Make-A-Wish star badge.

Manager Peter Kennedy said: "We're urging our guests to help us beat the fundraising record we set last year. We've worked with Make-A-Wish to provide the special star badges for which we're asking people to donate £1. This will help us make a real difference to children and young people across the country."

"Our staff will also be hosting their own fundraising events and activities throughout August which will be lots of fun for the whole family, so guests should look out for news on what's happening at their local Harvester."

TASTY GRUB GETS GOLD AWARDS

A FROZEN food company has won an award after its cuisine was put to a blind taste test.

Two dishes from Classic Cuisine, based in Moulton Park, have won a Gold Taste Award each.

The feta and sun blushed tomato cheesecake and their chicken wrapped in bacon both won the honour organised by the Guild of Fine Food.

Jeeva Sanmugam, managing director of Classic Cuisine, said: "We are very happy to have our dishes recognised by the Great Taste Awards. They are an incredibly credible awarding body that recognises quality products. We put a great deal of care and attention in to our products and getting this recognition is true testament to the skilled product development team we have at Classic Cuisine."

The firm's sales director Mark Dean added: "We are all very proud to have won such a prestigious award. The Gold Taste Award appreciates all the detail and quality of ingredients, development and testing that goes in to each individual product."

Cash saved as mobile library service reduced

THE mobile library service in Northamptonshire has been halved to save the county council £67,000.

The authority consulted with all mobile library customers to understand how they use the service and to gauge whether they are able to use another static library instead or join the Home Library service which is offered through volunteers.

These responses were analysed to shape the new mobile library routes and as a result these will now include early evenings and Saturday and Sunday visits.

County council cabinet member for customer services, Cllr Heather Smith, pictured, said: "Following our extensive budget consultation we agreed to reduce the mobile library service from four to two.

"However the new routes launched represent far more than simply a 50 per cent reduction.

"We are launching a transformed service that will go out to communities when and where they are really needed.

"As well as the changes being made to the frequency of mobile library visits and the number of stops, the new mobile library service now includes evening and weekend visits too.

"This means it will be available at the times most people are at home, therefore encouraging new borrowers and securing a long-term future for the service."

Email error causes school place panic

BY JONATHAN REILLY

jonathan.reilly@HPnorthants.co.uk

THOUSANDS of parents across Northamptonshire were left panicked after being mistakenly told their child's school place had been rejected.

It is believed that up to 5,000 families were affected by an email which said that school children hadn't been allocated their preferred choice.

The county council said that it was sent out by accident when they were testing the systems after software had been upgraded.

Parents were urged to ignore the email initially on the authority's website in a statement which said: "If you applied for a secondary school place for September 2011 and have received an email dated 04/08/2011 please ignore this.

"The emails have been generated in error and your child's allocated school place has not been affected.

"Sorry for any inconvenience caused."

A spokesman for Northamptonshire County Council said: "An email has been sent out in error to the parents and carers of pupils who will be starting at secondary schools in the county in September.

"We apologise for any inconvenience caused."

Man avoids jail after breaching community punishment

BY JONATHAN REILLY
jonathandreilly@HPnorthants.co.uk

A MAN has escaped prison despite swearing and being abusive to staff when he was doing community service.

Jake Picton, of Kenmuir Avenue, Northampton, had been serving 120 hours of unpaid work for affray when he refused to take part.

Elizabeth Gooderham, prosecuting, said: "He was on a community work site where he was assigned a role to fill water barrels from a local stream. He was offered water-proof trousers which he refused."

"He started doing the work but then stopped saying he was getting wet."

Northampton Crown Court heard on Monday how he was offered the trousers again before becoming abusive towards the probation staff.

Ms Gooderham said: "He told staff that he would get his father down there to, 'sort them out'."

The court also heard that Picton had breached his order before and had already been given 15 hours extra on to his sentence and had missed a quarter of appointments with the probation service.

Picton was ordered to complete his community unpaid work, ordered to wear a tag and given a curfew between the hours of 7pm and 6am. He must also live at his parents' house.

Judge Charles Wide QC said: "He must have thought it was Christmas when he got away with affray when he got a community order and now he breaches it."

"You have come within a whisker of going inside. You will complete your work, it's not a choice, it's a punishment. I will oversee any more of your cases if you breach these orders once again and one more breach and you will be going inside."

Plenty of fun down on the river

NEARLY 5,000 people gathered on Sunday to take part in the first ever Riverside Festival at Becket's Park.

The event at the popular local attraction, which celebrated 250 years of the River Nene being navigable from The Wash, through Peterborough to Northampton, saw families enjoying a host of waterside fun.

The festival also marked the opening of the marina at the park which is part of a £300,000 investment in the area.

Some of the fun had at this year's festival

Mechanic left feeling 'foolish' following drink driving shame

BY LAWRENCE JOHN
lawrencejohn@HNorthants.co.uk

A TEENAGE apprentice mechanic has been disqualified from driving for 22 months after magistrates took a hard line on his drink-driving.

Bradley James Elmbes, 19, found himself in the dock at Wellingborough Magistrates' Court on Monday after being caught by police and charged with drink-driving.

When Elmbes was breathalysed by police he was found to have 89 microgrammes of alcohol in 100 millilitres of breath – the legal limit is 35 microgrammes.

Elmbes, who pleaded guilty, was stopped by police after he was seen exceeding the speed limit and jumping a red light at a set of temporary traffic lights on Queensway.

He had been followed by police who witnessed him driving a Ford Escort along Shelley Road, at 12.38pm, on July 23.

Defending, duty solicitor Russell Eton said: "He is 19 years old and is employed as an apprentice mechanic.

"He lives at home with his parents and had been out with friends during the day.

"He had consumed too much alcohol and 89mg is high.

"He works at Sixfields in Northampton and he suspects he may be able to keep his employment as he has a friend who lives in Irchester and works in Northampton and can give him a lift."

Mr Eton said his client had been left feeling 'very foolish' after this incident.

Magistrate Penelope Menzies said: "This is a level C fine but there are aggravated features such as speeding and going through a red light.

"You were a potential risk to yourself and other road users and we take this very seriously."

Elmbes was fined £200 and disqualified from driving for 22 months.

He was offered the opportunity to take the drink-drive rehabilitation course which would cost him £185.

If he took it he would see his driving ban reduced by a quarter.

Wendy's just 'Fab' for her Tots firm

NORTHAMPTON-based family travel expert, Wendy Shand, has been named Fab Woman of the Year.

The accolade celebrates women who have come up with an idea for a business as a result of becoming a mother.

Wendy founded Tots to Travel, an online holiday lettings company specialising in family friendly properties after a holiday when her then two-year-old son fell into an unenclosed swimming pool.

Wendy is delighted to be named Fab Woman of the Year and said: "The competition was extraordinarily tough.

"My fellow nominees are truly inspirational women who have set up and are managing successful businesses as well as enjoying full family lives, so to actually win the award is an honour and really quite overwhelming."

Pensioner steps forward to paint historic shoes

A PENSIONER has taken it upon himself to spruce a part of St James.

Tony Barratt, 70, has decided to paint two concrete shoes in the historic part of town that was run down.

Mr Barratt said he took on the job after no one else in the area wanted to do it.

Mr Barratt, pictured, said: "I'm doing it because no one came forward. None of the authorities said they would tidy up the area but at a residents' meeting the council said if someone wanted to do it they could."

Life sentence for man who murdered Adil, 16

BY JONATHAN REILLY

jonathan.reilly@HPnorthants.co.uk

A MAN who used the broken shaft of a golf club to kill a teenager has been given a life sentence.

Adam Moore, 20, was found guilty at Northampton Crown Court on Monday of murdering Adil Basharar, 16, from Milton Keynes, outside his school in Deanshanger. He will serve a minimum 16 years in prison for his crime.

Freddy Wilson, 20, Jake Batten, 22, both from Deanshanger, and Daniel Anderson, 20, from Stony Stratford, were found not guilty of murder and manslaughter.

Moore, from Cosgrove, was also convicted of violent disorder along with Wilson, Batten and Anderson who were sentenced to three years in prison each.

Adil, from Milton Keynes, was attacked by the group on the grounds outside the Kingsbrook School in Deanshanger on Friday, November 19 last year.

During the trial, it was

revealed that the attack had happened in a case of mistaken identity, after the gang mistook him for another Adil who had stolen drugs from one of their friends.

The court had heard how Moore had beaten Adil with the golf club until it broke, before stabbing the teenager with the shaft, severing an artery in his pelvis. He died two days later on November 21.

Sentencing Moore, Judge Charles Wide QC said: "You took a golf club with you, which is serious enough as a weapon."

"You broke it hitting Adil Basharar and it then became a lethal weapon and you used it to stab him. As the jury found, you deliberately stabbed Adil Basharar, penetrating his body by about a foot, by about 25 to 30 centimetres.

"You must have known what you had done. It was a deliberate act intended to cause really serious harm. Life in prison is mandatory."

"There are some serious aggravating features. This took place outside a school. The group attack was on a 16-year-old, in the presence of other 16 year olds."

Addressing the men, Judge Wide QC said: "All four of you got together to attack Adil. This was a group attack, outside a school. This was on a 16-year-old boy, who was with his friends, other 16 year olds, including girls."

"I take that you never went to cause the death of Adil Basharar but when concerned with violent disorder it is a melancholic fact that the courts have to deal with unforeseen, fatal injuries caused in the course of general violence."

Officers praised for investigation

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE Police have been praised by a Judge for the way they investigated the murder of Adil Basharar.

Officers working on the case managed to put together more than 250 statements, 450 exhibits and more than 550 other documents towards the trial evidence. Many of these were collected hours after the attack.

During the course of the investigation, about 90 police officers and police staff were involved in investigating the case in some capacity, including 12 forensic investigators. Another 14 officers from Thames Valley Police were also involved.

Judge Charles Wide QC said: "I am conscious of the particular sensitivities involved in this case. In particular the officers involved in this investigation for the speed in which they were able to get full witness statements, following what was a fast changing and confusing environment."

"The officers in this case deserve to be commended for their work."

Following the sentencing, Detective Chief Inspector Martin Kinchin, leading the investigation, said: "I am pleased with the sentences given, they reflect the gravity of the crimes committed by these men."

Adil's uncle, Naz Fazal also thanked officers after the sentencing.

He said: "They've done a fantastic job which went well beyond our expectations and obviously we would like to thank them from our hearts for a wonderful and fantastic job."

Victim's sister tells of family's heartache

THE sister of the murdered schoolboy has labelled the men that attacked him 'disgusting people.'

Sobia Basharar, 19, was speaking outside Northampton Crown Court on Monday after Adam Moore was handed a life sentence, with a minimum of 16 years, for the murder of the popular teenager.

Ms Basharar said: "I don't want to waste my time thinking about those four men. They are disgusting people."

"We were really dreading the whole process so it is a relief that it is all over."

Ms Basharar also read a statement outside the court on behalf of the family. She said: "The past few months have been the hardest of my life and the lives of my parents and family and all those people that loved and cared for Adil. It has been the hardest thing in the world coming to terms with the tragic fact that I will never see my brother grow into a man, I will never see him go to university, become the accountant he wanted to, get married, have children of his own and will never see him grow old."

"I think of him every minute of every day and take relief only from the few hours of sleep that I manage to get during which sometimes if I'm lucky I forget what has happened to my family."

"It breaks my heart to think that my brother was so brutally attacked by four men who have carried out a premeditated attack on a 16-year-old outside his school."

"They had armed themselves with weapons and attacked a defenceless boy. Adil was not in the wrong place at the wrong time. He was at school. He was on a break and was with his friends just outside of his school when he was attacked in broad daylight. He must have been so frightened."

She added: "His life was so cruelly taken away and it does not matter how much time passes, Adil's loss will stay with us forever. We will miss him every minute of every day and will never understand how this happened."

"These men that attacked Adil, they still have their lives. They will live. Their families still can see them and they can still have a future."

"They will have the opportunity to get married, have their own families and live their lives. For me and my family we have been passed a sentence which is for life – a sentence that we will have to live every day of our lives."

Council could close community centre

BY LAWRENCE JOHN
lawrencejohn@HPnorthants.co.uk

RUSSELL House community centre in Northampton could be closed and sold.

Northamptonshire County Council is proposing to shut two buildings it manages – the Russell House facility in Northampton and Connaught Centre in Corby.

The council is currently consulting on proposals about what should happen to these centres.

Groups and organisations that use the centres have already been contacted and invited to give their feedback.

Cabinet member with responsibility for property and asset management, Cllr Andrew Langley, said: "We are looking at these proposals as part of our asset utilisation strategy which aims to make sure we manage our assets effectively, delivering our strategic priorities while also ensuring value for money for taxpayers. We've identified the two buildings are not necessary for the delivery of our own services and we want to examine the impact of any potential changes, including closure, for local groups who use the facilities.

"Any decisions about the future of the buildings will be taken at a cabinet meeting in autumn and we want local people to use the consultation to help shape the outcome."

The county council owns Russell House and is the leaseholder for the Connaught Centre.

In addition, centre users are being invited to attend specially-arranged meetings this month to discuss the proposals.

The consultation register can be accessed on the council's website at www.northamptonshire.gov.uk

The consultation will run until Friday, September 30.

OUR HERO: Michael Ellis MP gets to grips with the equipment

MP gets to grips with the pole as he learns tricks of fireman's trade

NORTHAMPTON North MP Michael Ellis has followed up his stint as a shelf stacker by spending the day with a team of firemen.

His day at the Mereway Fire station followed up his day at the check-outs of Morrisons on Kettering Road in Northampton last week.

While at the station Mr Ellis got to try out all the essential fireman's equipment and tried his hand at sliding down the famous fireman's pole.

Town to open buildings to public in historic gesture

NORTHAMPTON'S heritage will be thrown open to the general public next month.

To celebrate the town's history a number of buildings will be opened up as part of Heritage Open Days.

During this year's four-day programme, which runs from Thursday, September 8 to Sunday, September 11 there will be open buildings, guided tours, walks, talks, exhibitions, fairs and heritage bus trails.

Highlights include a rare chance to see inside a Sikh temple, a walking tour around the historic local area surrounding St Peter's Church, guided tours of BBC Radio Northampton studios, tours of Delapre Abbey and guided tours around The Guildhall.

Northampton Borough Council cabinet member for heritage assets and projects, Cllr Tim Hadland, said: "Northampton's 1,000 year history makes it a unique county town in the region.

"Heritage Open Days are a fabulous opportunity to learn about and celebrate our marvellous town."

Heritage Open Days in Northampton is organised by Northampton Borough Council and run by volunteers who are all keen to celebrate the town's rich heritage.

Events brochures can be found in cultural venues, visitor centres and libraries or you can download a copy from the borough council's website by visiting www.northampton.gov.uk/heritageopen or call the conservation team on 01604 837633.

Princes of darkness aim to see the light

BY LAWRENCE JOHN

lawrencejohn@HPnorthants.co.uk

NIGHT scouts are set to tour the county checking which street lights should be turned back on.

Last week, the switch off across the county was completed with 50 per cent of lamps turned off.

In February, Northamptonshire County Council announced it would be turning off half the 63,000 lights it is responsible for in order to save £2 million.

The lights switched off as part of this programme are clearly marked with a 'lights off symbol'.

The stickers have been applied to advise where a light has been turned off and also to prevent people from wasting time informing the authority that a light is out.

The night scouts will now travel the length of the county to look at the impact of the switch off.

They will carry out night time inspections to see the effect in different towns.

The council's priority list for lights to be kept on is:

- Accident hot-spots (at night)
- High crime areas based on evidence supplied by the police

LIGHTS OUT: Team will assess how areas are affected after the switch off

■ Primary town centres including CCTV coverage within boundary

■ Complex junctions/roundabouts and signal controlled junctions

■ Secondary shopping centres

■ Designated crossings – uncontrolled zebra crossings where no integral lighting exists

■ Subways

■ Remote footway and cycleways – to be assessed on an individual basis

Other priorities considered in conjunction with these include:

■ Outside schools/safer routes to schools

■ Residential homes/sheltered housing and medical facilities.

A spokesman for Northamptonshire County Council said: "We will be carrying out inspections now the switch-off has been completed to assess what changes may be required and react to genuine concerns which are evidence-based."

"This will not involve wholesale changes but more where there are particular obstructions causing specific and extensive dark areas."

"The inspections, carried out by our night scouts, have been carried out in each of the areas following the switch off."

"Another sweep of the county will also take place over the next few weeks."

POWER TO THE PEOPLE!! T&K ARE 100 NOT OUT!!

T&K Solar PV (the renewables division of T&K Home Improvements Ltd) has just completed its 100th Solar PV Installation. Unbeknown to the lucky customer, upon completion of this landmark installation, T&K's Director of Renewables, Ryan Johnson, presented Mr Shipman of Debdale Road in Wellingborough with a cheque for £100.

The Renewables Division of T&K was launched back in 2008 initially installing solar thermal (water heating) systems for its existing customers. As talk of the Feed-in Tariff within government circles increased T&K Solar offered renewable energy systems which would qualify for the Feed-In Tariff (FIT). This followed extensive market research into Solar Photovoltaic (PV) hardware, both panels and inverters.

BP are known industry wide to be the market leader in solar PV modules providing by far the best performance, proof of longevity and warranty performance enabling T&K to supply accurate performance estimates and payback calculations for every potential customer. T&K completed an extensive accredited training programme for its entire staff involved in the process from design, electrical installation through to panel fixing. Once the key ingredients were in place T&K were awarded the Microgeneration Certification Scheme Accreditation (MCS). In order for a householder to qualify for FIT payments an accredited MCS installations company must install their system.

"Be aware of organisations that are not MCS certified who will secure the sale and sub-contract out the installation and commissioning stages. Unlike many national energy companies and national organisations who claim to offer high quality solar PV installations, T&K do not use sub-contractors", says Ryan.

Ryan continues "back in May we opened our doors to the public and ran four seminars to explain the benefits of domestic solar PV systems. The attendance and feedback was overwhelming. Our philosophy with Solar, as it has been for all products for more than 30 years, is to offer good honest advice backed up by a quality product, service and guarantee".

"By only sourcing the market leading materials and ensuring that the installation is undertaken by our own personnel, to our own high standards, we can offer an industry first 10 year guarantee on all materials and workmanship from the date of installation. In addition our guarantee is covered by a comprehensive ten-year insurance backed guarantee to ensure complete peace of mind. Our guarantee combined with BP's 25-year performance warranty makes a solar investment with T&K the safest investment in the UK today. Householders need to be aware that not all solar panels deliver the same performance"

THE SCIENCE

Photovoltaic (PV) panels convert daylight into electricity which can be used to power your home during the day. When you cannot generate enough for your needs, you simply buy electricity from your utility company at normal rates. However, you buy less than you ordinarily would.

"Many of our customers have found that they have changed their habits with regards to energy usage" Ryan states. "Gone are the days of putting the dishwasher and washing machine on at night when electricity may or may not be 'cheaper'. They now use these appliances in the middle of the day when they can use the free energy generated from their Solar PV system."

FEED-IN TARIFF

The Feed-in Tariff is a scheme introduced by the Government that pays householders with an approved renewable technology for EVERY unit of electricity (kWh) they generate for the duration of the 25-year tariff.

The 'Generation' element of the Feed-in Tariff pays 43.3p per Kilowatt-hour (one unit of electricity) of energy generated provided the system has a capacity of 4kW or less (most domestic systems do). The FIT rate was raised in April 2011 after year one of the scheme in line with inflation.

The income is tax-free and index linked so will increase in line with inflation over the life of the tariff and the Government has enshrined this in legislation. In addition to the FIT income, householders also benefit from the free electricity they produce and earn an extra 3.1p for every unit that they export back to the grid (known as the export tariff).

Under the Feed-in Tariff an average home with a 2.56kW T&K Solar System (14 panels which requires approximately 20m² of roof space) can earn £997 in the first year from generation and exports to the grid. In addition, the electricity produced is likely to save £133 on the year one electricity bill (based upon current rates). This system will have paid for itself in just 9 years, will have an average annual return on investment over the term of the tariff of 21.33% and will save 31.29 tonnes of CO₂. There is no safer or financially attractive investment opportunity available to the homeowner today.

"We offer free, no obligation home assessments. As a part of our system feasibility assessment we produce performance estimates, payback calculations, return on investment figures and CO₂ savings allowing the homeowner to make an informed choice. Our figures are based upon the actual system we design to fit onto the customer's roof and we back it up with our comprehensive 10 year insurance backed guarantee", says Ryan.

"We have a fully operational system, connected to the grid, working on our Eco Bungalow on our Exhibition Centre. I would urge anyone who is interested in having a solar PV system fitted to come and have a look at ours and see the electricity which it is generating against our initial performance estimates".

"Going through the FIT application with our own system means we can guide our customers through their FIT application process. Our aim is to provide advice and assistance every step of the way, something that the large energy companies won't, or can't do", says Ryan.

A study by GE Money Home Lending says having panels installed on your roof can add more than £3,000 to the value of a property. However, at the moment there are no clear figures as the percentage of homes that have solar PV panels is so low. We are however already seeing panels make a big difference in Energy Performance Certificates and house buyers are increasingly taking more notice of them. As energy bills continue to rise, in the long term, homes that already have panels will have greater appeal to buyers.

Ryan concludes "One final point to be aware of is the companies who offer to install the panels for free. T&K carefully considered this business model (rent-a-roof) but concluded that 99% of customers are better off installing panels for themselves and keeping the feed-in tariff returns. In addition there are potential difficulties regarding system ownership when the householder decides to sell the property. Which - the consumer protection website backs this up by saying "if you can afford it, you should buy the system up-front".

100th SATISFIED CUSTOMER

Mr Shipman was presented with a cheque for £100 as a result of being T&K Solar's 100th Solar PV installation.

"I am delighted with my new Solar PV system and it's an added bonus to be T&K's 100th customer!" says Mr Shipman.

"T&K made the whole process very clear; they explained the financial facts and figures in detail. The survey and installation were completed without a hitch. I will start generating Feed-in Tariff payments today and my Bluetooth monitor shows me how much electricity my system is producing".

"They said the installation would be done in one day. I can't believe it was done that quickly."

"Knowing that T&K is a family run business established in the area for more than 30 years made the decision easy. The service I received is what I would expect from T&K."

SPECIAL 100 NOT OUT OFFER

In recognition of reaching this landmark and with the help of BP, T&K are offering a massive 35% discount from its range of solar PV Systems.

"I would urge those who are interested in finding out more to give us a call on 0800 622716 and arrange a free no obligation assessment or visit us at the Exhibition Centre"

"The 100 Not Out Discount will end on 28th August 2011, and the highest level of the Feed-in Tariff is only available until April 2012", concludes Ryan.

'Fond memories' of musical Natasha, 16

BY JONATHAN REILLY

jonathan.reilly@thephorthants.co.uk

THE family of a girl who died suddenly have paid tribute to the talented teenager.

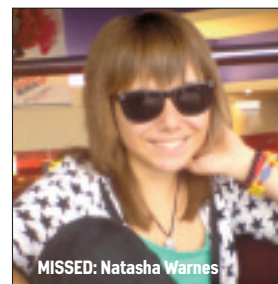

Natasha Warnes, 16, was found in her room at her home in Broadway East, Abington, Northampton, on Thursday July 28.

Her family, father Mark Warnes, mother Emma Keasley and older sister Samantha released a tribute through Northamptonshire Police.

They said: "Natasha has left a hole in our lives that will never be filled. She will be greatly missed by her family and many friends, from Broadmead Baptist Church, to the County Youth Orchestra, Zingresque orchestral folk group, her school friends at Headlands, Northampton School for Girls and Northampton School for Boys sixth form.

"Natasha had so many different hobbies and activities she was involved with but her real passion was art and music.

"Many people knew her from busking in Northampton town centre with 'Valerie' - Natasha's name for her violin. So many people have told us how much they enjoyed watching her play music. Natasha was a really talented musician and composed her own orchestral score - Un Attimo (One Moment) - which she performed at Northampton School for Girls and the Derigate theatre in front of over 1,000 people.

MISSED: Natasha Warnes

"As well as the violin, Natasha also played the mandolin, hammered dulcimer, recorder, penny-whistle and the guitar. She loved everything about music."

They added: "Her other big love was art and design. She was always drawing and enjoyed manga art and tattoo design. She had a wicked sense of humour which really came out in her artwork, be it on album covers or just in her doodles. As a child she loved drawing dragons and her pictures were incredible for her age with so much detail. Natasha was clearly set for a creative career in art or music.

"Natasha was always smiling as a child and showing compassion for other people - she was often called a 'little old woman' for her concern for others.

"We cannot put into words how thankful we are for the generosity and the love we have received from our family and friends. The tribute Natasha's friends left in Abington Street touched us so much - we didn't realise just how much our daughter was loved.

"Our friends and family have been a huge support, cooking and cleaning for us and helping in any way they can. Even strangers who knew Natasha, but didn't know us, have been there for us, too.

"Natasha will be so terribly missed by us all, her boyfriend, extended family and friends.

"We cannot imagine life without her, but we will remain strong for her younger sister Samantha and take with us the good times and our fond memories of her into the future."

Natasha's funeral will take place on Friday, August 19 at noon at Mount Pleasant Baptist Church, Kettering Road.

Bobby's striving for his Olympic dream

BY LAWRENCE JOHN
lawrence.john@HPnorthants.co.uk

ONE of the faces of the University of Northampton's new advertising campaign is gearing up for the London 2012 Olympics.

Bobby White, 28, who is a BSc (Hons) Sports Science graduate, is captain of the London 2012 GB handball team.

When Mr White started his degree at the university in 2004, he wanted to work hard, achieve a good grade and follow a career in sport and exercise science.

However, the opportunities presented to him now see him on the road to competing in next year's Olympic Games.

He said: "I was in the last year of my degree when I heard about Sir Steve Redgrave's Talent Identification Programme for Sporting Giants.

"You had to be under 25 years old, over 6ft 3 and play sports with your hands."

"I sent off my application and six weeks later, I was invited to the handball trials with 120 other people, out of over 2,500 applicants.

"I kept making the next cut and the next cut, before I was short-listed for the final 15 and then I made it into the final seven for handball talent spotting. In 2008, I moved to Denmark to play full-time out there."

He added: "My driving force is competing at the London 2012 Olympics."

"Handball has got a big chance to become popular; it just needs investment and someone to get hold of it."

Mr White is also proud to be part of the university's new advertising campaign - Dreams Realised as he had a great time studying there.

HEALTH and BEAUTY

If you are a supermodel, a nun or one of those rare people who is completely comfortable with how you look, stop reading now. For anyone else - come on in and let's talk beauty!

Now of course, we all know that beauty really is in the eye of the beholder but it's also true that there's always room for improvement.

With a little help, your natural beauty will shine through, you'll grow in confidence and feel fabulous. Whether it is for a truly special occasion (can you hear those wedding bells?) or a treat for someone you love there are all kinds of pamper packages, spa treatments and rescue remedies to revive, rejuvenate and refresh.

It may seem obvious but sometimes just taking the simplest measures will go a long way to looking good and feeling great.

The first obvious signs of ageing tend to show around your jawline with evidence of sagging and lines on the neck.

Use a firming or lifting serum to target the area.

Try our new Trendy Nail Wraps for toes!

The skin under the eye is very delicate, so don't use too much product.

Opt for something that is soothing and cooling and massage it in oh, so lightly.

Matting is so fashionable for your skin right now; team it with fresh, zingy pink lip colour and coloured mascaras. But why not dare to be different by trying out something new every few weeks?

It's completely liberating and will help unleash your inner beauty diva!

Look after it and it will still be there tomorrow. Hair straighteners and highlights can do untold damage to your lovely locks.

To minimise the effects get regular trims, do weekly deep-conditioning treatments, and give your hair a break from the blow dryer whenever possible.

Your lips are first to feel the effects of central heating and air conditioning, so opt for lipcare which contains a moisturiser.

Try staining your lips with your finger in the first place and then adding layers until you reach the desired shade.

It's SO important how you apply creams and serums to your face.

The skin is really a big muscle that needs massaging to keep firm and toned, so apply product in sweeping movements up the jawline for the perfect application.

Breakfast club

— with Heart FM's Stuart and Natalie

THIS week we caught up with Dawn French to talk about her new book A Tiny Bit Marvellous which has spent most of the summer at the top of the bestseller lists.

As you would expect from Dawn she is mostly all about the laughs but she told us about her serious side too: "I'm a tart for a laugh and I would hate to go through any day without having a big laugh at something, but that's not the main thrust of the person I am, I am quite a serious person and I am serious about the important things in life and I do fear what would happen if you don't notice your kids." So we wondered what her teenage daughter Billie makes of her new literary career.

"When it comes to my professional life, she really isn't bothered by it, she doesn't watch anything on telly I do or anything I write and I really don't mind that.

"As far as Billie is concerned I'm her mum and it's about what we are having for tea tonight? Can I borrow some cash? Can you fix the car?"

We couldn't help notice that Dawn has lost a lot of weight, four stone in fact, and we wondered what prompted it:

"I just kind of felt that into my 50s, I ought to take a little bit more care of my health and I got a little too big.

"I'm all for big girls, always have been and I'll never be a small girl and I'm still twice the weight that anyone is supposed to be in my BMI but I just feel a bit healthier."

What an amazing lady, and we would recommend you pick the book up if you're yet to head off on holiday.

Dogs to try out a bit of Shakespeare

AUDITIONS

HAVING recently searched for two boy actors to perform in the The Go-Between being staged later this year, Royal & Derngate are now on the lookout for some pooches to step in the spotlight.

The theatre needs two dogs for their forthcoming production of The Two Gentlemen of Verona which runs from Friday, September 30 to Saturday, October 22.

The show puts a twist on Shakespeare's tale of love, friendship and infidelity, transporting it to a pop-culture world of music, fashion and paparazzi.

Reflecting this setting, director Matthew Dunster is looking for a small dog, sometimes described as a 'handbag dog', such as a Chihuahua, pug, miniature poodle or Yorkshire terrier, to portray Launce's dog Crab. Stage manager Meryl Couper said: "The dog doesn't need to be able to do any fancy tricks but must be good-tempered and placid and capable of staying still on command."

"Above all the dog must be happy being on stage under lights in front of an audience." Ideally the role will be shared between two dogs, so they can alternate performances.

The selected dogs would need to be available for some rehearsals between August 29 and September 26 and for the show's run.

Auditions will take place on the week starting Monday, August 22.

Anyone interested in bringing their dog along should contact the theatre for more information and to be given a time.

To register your interest email your contact details to twogents@royalandderngate.co.uk or call Meryl on 01604 655774.

So much to see in stunning Norway

TRAVEL REVIEW

DID cruising do it for me? Well certainly Norway did.

It is a simply beautiful country with staggering scenery and attractive old towns.

The weather held out for us, so we saw it with the sun peeping out from behind Nordic clouds.

Our first stop was Stavanger, which was on a minor fjord, nestled among a number of islands. It is not a large town, about the size of Bedford, and is, like most Norwegian towns, surrounded by large mountains.

It was once famous for fish but is now the centre of Norway's oil industry.

In fact it has two museums, a canning museum and a petroleum museum, both of which we managed to miss.

We did go, however, to the old port, where, along narrow, cobbled streets are scores of 18th century wooden houses.

Originally working class homes, they have been restored and maintained.

There are 173 of them, the largest collection of such homes in Europe.

Some of you will enjoy the irony that the council was going to demolish them and redevelop the area but a lively protest campaign prevented it happening.

Next we found ourselves cruising up the Geiranger fjord at around six in the morning. The wife awoke me to check out the view, which was one of the most stunning I have ever seen in my life.

It is a narrow fjord and mountains rise up on either side, capped with snow even in July. Streams cascade down the sides of the mountains. At one point we spotted small goats clinging precariously to the edge.

At the end of the fjord is the small town of Geiranger, which is a Mecca for campers, who arrive on the daily ferry.

The next fjord, leading to Andasnes, is wider but just as dramatic. The town is surrounded by great mountains and boasts one of the finest train journeys in Europe.

Andasnes has lost some of its old charm as it was all-but destroyed in the Second World War. Here we are not far from Trondheim, so almost in the north and even past midnight it was still light.

The trip finished in Bergen, a city founded in 1070 and its wealth was again founded on fish.

By the old harbour is the Bryggen quarter, where two and three storey wooden buildings retain the red and ochre colours of the old warehouses.

There is a funicular railway which takes people up to one of the hills for some fantastic views.

Sadly the queues were longer than our patience, so we gave it a miss. Instead we went to the old harbour where there was a thriving fish market, where everything from monkfish to whale could be bought.

We then were tempted to have a look at the Leprosy museum. There aren't many of those around, or, thankfully, the occupants of the one-time hospital.

Bergen is a lovely city, well worth a longer visit than we were able to give it.

And what of the cruising experience between these stops and Princess Cruises who were our hosts?

The four of us thoroughly enjoyed it, mainly by diving into the experience, rather than pretending not to be there, which was my first inclination.

Both the eight-year-old and the 16-year-old had a great time, with the teenager insisting we dressed up on formal nights, him looking like James Bond and me more Jimmy Tarbuck.

The food was great and the staff on the Grand Princess could not have been more helpful or friendly. The only drawback was that there was a quiz in the main bar most nights, to which I was dragged along to.

Oh, and I did have a go at line dancing, at which I was slightly less competent than my previous attempts at ice skating in New York.

Renault Twingo

THE new Twingo is the first mass production vehicle to be inspired by the Renault brand's new design identity. Among the changes are its front end which includes this stylistic renewal, while on the bonnet, the Renault logo has been enlarged and centred in a more vertical position. Following the first generation of this iconic model, New Twingo once again has a typically expressive front face. It will be presented at Renault's press conference at the Frankfurt Motor Show on September 13 by Carlos Tavares, chief operating officer. Mallinder opts for hard pre-season for a reason to a game because physically we'll probably go into the game a little bit more tired than we would previously.

"We've only started contact this week, so it has been really the first full-on week of rugby. It's early days in terms of our rugby preparation, but we're hoping for a good work out.

"We've got a number of new faces and we've got to get used to playing at a high standard.

"We have picked a hard pre-season on purpose because hopefully by the time we come to play Gloucester we're up to speed and are used to playing tough, intensive matches."

Russia are preparing for their first appearance at the Rugby World Cup this autumn, and the game could well see new Saints signing Vasily Artemyev playing against his future team-mates for his national team.

Meanwhile, Northampton are likely to field two different sides in each half, with Mallinder saying: "We like, at this stage of three weeks out, to give everybody a good 40 minutes of rugby under their belts."

He added: "That's why we feel training has stepped up a bit this week – because they have got that incentive of a game.

"They know that some things are there at the end of the week, which is what rugby is all about.

"I know pre-season is about working hard, but these are rugby players and they enjoy playing rugby."

The defeat in the Heineken Cup final at the end of May now seems a distant memory, and there is once again the air of anticipation around Franklin's Gardens that the Saints will once again be pushing for top honours.

Mallinder (pictured above) insists there has been no hangover from that or the Premiership semi-final defeat to local rivals Leicester Tigers, and feels they can benefit from those experiences as long as they learn the lessons as to why they missed out on a trophy.

He said: "In hindsight it was a very good season, to be involved in those big games at the end was fantastic. "It was a magic experience to everybody involved, and of course it really hurt and we were very disappointed to lose.

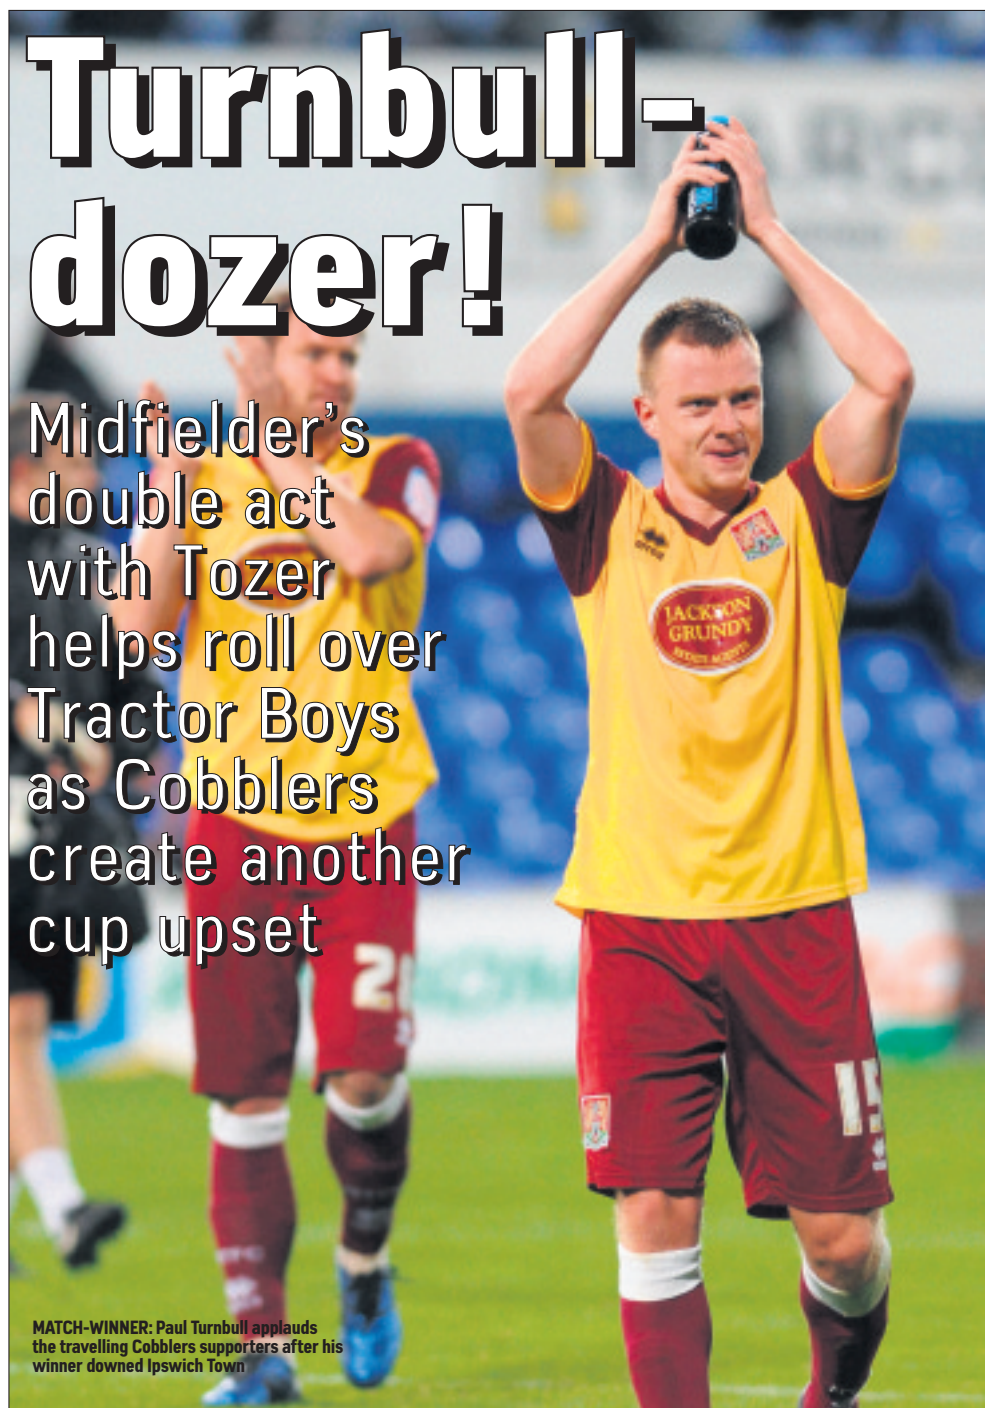

"It's good experience for the team and I think it has given everybody that extra incentive that that's just what we want to do – go on and win a major trophy.

"We want to win and improve, and we've got to aim for that top four. You've got to aim to do that and in Europe you've obviously got to qualify and get out of your pool.

"It's going to be very difficult, we've got a tough group with two of the first three games away, but it will be a good challenge."

Turnbull- dozer!

Midfielder's double act with Tozer helps roll over Tractor Boys as Cobblers create another cup upset

MATCH-WINNER: Paul Turnbull applauds the travelling Cobblers supporters after his winner downed Ipswich Town

Copson comes away with double world gold

ATHLETICS

ANGELA Copson came away with two gold medals and a silver when she took part in her first ever World Masters Track & Field Championships in Sacramento, USA.

Competing in the women's over 60 category, the 64-year-old had a hectic schedule of four races in seven days, which started with the final of the 5,000m in sweltering heat.

Not surprisingly the race was a slow tactical one with runners from China, Mexico and the USA taking it in turns to lead. With one lap to go, she made her decisive move and held on to win by 1.6secs, defeating American Edie Stevenson with a time of 21mins 20.71secs.

Copson was back the next day in the second semi-final of the 800m and with the first two qualifying, she finished in second place with 2mins 52.44secs. The final followed two days later with 12 athletes taking part.

With the temperature still very high, the Rugby & Northampton athlete, who only started running five years ago, found Denmark's Ingerlise Jensen a bit too strong, but nevertheless moved into second place in the final 200m to win the silver medal in a lifetime best of 2:40.54. This knocked more than two seconds off her PB from 2009.

She then, had four days rest before the final of the 10,000m, when the weather was slightly cooler and they were also joined in the field by the over 65 ladies.

Copson took the lead from the start and destroyed the whole field of 19 runners by lapping every single one of them at least once and finished in a time of 41mins 22.7secs. Jean Fail was the only other Rugby & Northampton athlete taking part and she too came away with a gold medal when she won the W60 80m hurdles title in 14.56 secs.

Both Fail and Copson represented Great Britain in the over 60 4x100m relay, with Copson running the third leg and handing over to Fail on the final leg. They finished fifth in 64.69secs.

Luke Robinson is only one road race away from becoming the Rugby & Northampton club champion after coming home third in last Friday's Blisworth Five Mile.

Also victorious for R&N were: Greg Spellman (M45), Robert Male (U17), Melanie Wood (U20), Daisy Melville (W35), Copson (W60), Jeff Haynes (M55).

BY MARC BAZELEY

marc.bazeley@hpnorthants.co.uk

WITH his 53rd minute goal against Ipswich Town, Paul Turnbull wrote his name into Northampton Town history in only his second game for the club as he helped the Cobblers to another Carling Cup upset.

It was his strike that completed the comeback before Northampton held on for a 2-1 win over the Championship side at Portman Road – the same venue where their memorable run in last season's competition came to an end.

Turnbull's central midfield partner, and arguably Northampton's man-of-the-match, Ben Tozer was also on the scoresheet, having cancelled out Jay Emmanuel-Thomas' 12th minute opener.

And it was a just reward for the dynamic duo, who have already formed a promising partnership in the middle of the park.

"It's just talking and getting to know each other," said Turnbull, explaining why they work so well together.

"In training that's all we do, me and Ben do our own thing sometimes and that's how you get to do it.

"You get to learn from each other and that's what we've been doing.

"Because we play a 4-2-3-1, people look at me and Tozer and think that we're sitters, but we're not.

"We're there to go forward, and one of us sits when the other one goes forwards. We did that tonight and we both got on the score sheet."

Tozer and Michael Jacobs were the only two players that started for Northampton on Tuesday evening who featured in last year's League Cup run, including that memorable night at Anfield where they beat Liverpool on penalties.

Turnbull said: "It has been mentioned. Obviously Crackers [Jacobs] scored that day and he has been in my ear saying, 'I've done this, I've done that'.

"It was a great achievement for the club in beating Liverpool and it's a great achievement again today. They made changes and we knew they were going to, so we knew we could come here and win the game.

"The gaffer has said, 'you can go and win the game', and that's what we did."

Ever the professional though, Turnbull was not getting too carried away with the result and is already looking to Saturday's League Two trip to Aldershot Town.

They won their season opener at Bradford City 2-1, although their midweek Cup game at West Ham United was postponed due to the riots in London.

Turnbull is confident the Cobblers can get their first league win of the season at The Rec after beating Ipswich, saying: "It gives the squad a good boost.

"We've got Aldershot away on Saturday and we'll go there, play our football and go out and win the game again.

"They won their first game and we drew ours, but we know that we are capable of going there and winning the game."

Willey eyeing push for first team spot

AFTER a year of injury frustration, David Willey is aiming to force his way into the reckoning for Northamptonshire's remaining LV= County Championship games.

The 2010 season saw him play in just two Division Two matches at the start of the season, while the young all-rounder was also in and out of the limited overs side.

Problems with shin splints restricted his bowling time more than anything, but an 18 over spell on day one of last week's tour match against India indicated he is on the way back.

"Last year I was unfortunate – I had shin splints all season and I missed a lot of the three-day second team games, as well as the first class stuff," Willey (pictured above) explained.

"This year I've been getting back in the second team, playing some three-day cricket and getting some overs under my belt.

"I came out and managed to get through about 15 overs of seam, which wasn't too bad.

"I'm not feeling my best and my legs are starting to feel a bit sore, but hopefully they can get used to it and I can start pushing for a place in the first team."

That game was only his second first class outing of the summer, having played against Loughborough MCCU in the season opener.

Willey has, however, been a regular for the Steelbacks in the Clydesdale Bank 40 and Friends Life T20, and after taking the wicket of Gautam Gambhir against India, he is looking to push on in multi-day games.

He said: "I've been quite happy, but I'd like a bit more consistency. There have been runs at times and I've bowled well in spells.

"Really it's just getting the consistency up so I can get my name on the team sheet in the first team.

"I got one early on, but didn't really find my rhythm. I had a bit of a long day down the golf course the day before so I think I might have to put it down to that.

"But I managed to pick up a wicket which is always nice against an international side."

Willey also showed his ability with the bat in last week's CB40 encounter against Surrey Lions at the Oval with 74 after being pushed up the order to open due to Stephen Peters' injury, although his efforts were ultimately in vain as Northants went down by 12 runs.

But with Peters, and possibly leading wicket-taker Jack Brooks, out of the Division Two clash with second placed Middlesex at Lord's, Willey could well be getting his chance.

Whether he will bat any further up the order in the four-day game remains to be seen though.

He said: "Pedro unfortunately had a calf injury and there was a slot there. I think really the position was there and they just chucked me in as a see what happens."

"There was nothing to lose really and, fortunately for me, I managed to take my opportunity and stick some runs on the board, so hopefully it puts me in the frame for top of the order in the future.

"If you look at the guys that are ahead of me, there are some brilliant players scoring a lot of runs regularly.

"That's one thing with me – the consistency of scoring runs. Hopefully if I can work hard, get runs day in, day out, and then I can start sliding up the order."

Johnson wants cup form transferred to league you can keep doing is badgering away and try to get the best out of your team.

"When it comes out you can say, 'that's what we're looking for, now go and reproduce it', and that's what we've got to do when we get into the league.

"We have to take each game as it comes, but people have seen we have got a bit of quality in our group, and if we can bring it out more often than not then we might have a bit of fun."

The draw for the second round of the Carling Cup takes place after tonight's televised game between Sheffield Wednesday and Blackpool, with Northampton no doubt hoping they will draw a Premier League side out of the hat. They could well be paired with Liverpool, who they memorably defeated at Anfield on penalties last year, along with any of the other top flight sides that are not involved in European competitions.

Johnson does not believe the current team can draw on the experience of that run, saying: "Not many of us were involved last year so we haven't really got that in our minds or our memories.

"There were only a couple of lads out there that were involved, so this is a new era with a new group of lads and new experiences, and that was a great one today."

The result means Gavin and Magnussen close the gap on GT class championship leaders Dirk Mueller and Joey Hand, who finished fourth at Mid Ohio.

Gavin said: "I'm disappointed we haven't got first but we got second and finished ahead of the BMWs again which closed up the gap in the championship. Jan and I are a good partnership and are getting the results at the moment, scoring the points and finishing on the podium so let's hope we can keep this run going."

The next ALMS race is the four hour long Road Race Showcase at Elkhart Lake, Wisconsin, on Saturday, August 20.

Ipswich giant-killing is Jewell in crown for Gary

BY MARC BAZELEY

THE Carling Cup is proving a happy hunting ground for Northampton Town. Last year they defeated three teams from higher divisions, while on Tuesday night they upset the apple cart once again with a 2-1 victory over Ipswich town.

The sides were paired together for the second year in a row, with the Cobblers having their run to the fourth round of last season's competition ended at Portman Road by the Suffolk side.

But Tuesday night's round one meeting saw Gary Johnson's new look side come from behind to record another League Cup scalp thanks to goals from the midfield duo of Ben Tozer and Paul Turnbull.

"The victory is very sweet because I thought we played some really good football against a really good football team," admitted Northampton boss Johnson.

"I said to the lads that I thought they could be part of a really good football match and as long as they showed a commitment, I thought the football would come out.

"You're away from home at a Championship side and it took us ten or 15 minutes to get into it.

"They got their goal, and the lads didn't fade and die and they picked it up.

"We had to keep the ball for longer after that and we gradually started creating chances.

"Jake [Robinson] had two really good chances and Bas [Savage] had one, so we did wrestle our way back into it with quality football."

Jay Emmanuelle-Thomas had put the Tractor Boys ahead with a slightly fortunate goal from a cross-cum-shot that sailed over the head of Northampton keeper and Ipswich fan, Sam Walker, with 12 minutes gone.

But goals either side of half time from Tozer and Turnbull settled the contest in favour of the League Two side, and Johnson hailed the belief shown by his team to come back.

He said: "If they believe in themselves then there shouldn't be a lot between ourselves and the Championship. They've got to aspire, some of them, to getting back to the Championship, while some of them haven't been there yet. I thought they put in that 100 percent effort you need to win games like this, so that was good.

"We were clever, we were professional and with a lot of skill out there, and the combination play outside the area was special.

"We scored two goals but we had six or seven good chances to score more."

Northampton now head to Aldershot Town in League Two on Saturday, followed by a trip to Bristol Rovers next Tuesday, having been held to a goalless draw in the season opener at home to Accrington Stanley last weekend.

Johnson said: "I don't want to go too mad, we've only won this game but against a good side. It will give us the belief that I think we need in our football as individuals and a team.

"I think that will keep us in good stead and keep us confident going into the league. It's a long old season and all

Saints won't go in cold for friendly war against Russia

RUGBY UNION

AFTER weeks of punishing, physical training, the Northampton Saints players finally get to take to the rugby field tomorrow night when Russia provide the opposition for the first of their pre-season encounters.

The squad had their initial contact sessions this week ahead of a rigorous four-match campaign before the Aviva Premiership gets underway, with away games against French outfit Castres and Toulouse, as well as a re-run of the Heineken Cup final at Leinster.

Director of rugby Jim Mallinder has deliberately picked encounters that will test his side ahead of the season opener at home to Gloucester on Sunday, September 4, and is looking forward to Friday evening.

"We're expecting a tough, physical test," he said. "The players will be training hard this week, it won't be the normal build-up
